Dear Wanda,

Thank you for sending the Energy Wraps for testing at our clinic. They have reduced pain in joints and limbs, and have facilitated opening the lymphatic system. Testing was completed with the Phazx 2010 BodyScan using EAV to assess the stress, or fall, on each client's lymphatic system point. (Fall indicates the reduction of energy caused by electromagnetic fields.) A normal EAV reading is 50 rise/0-2 fall. Here are the results on two clients:

J.T. is a 29y/o married woman with complaints of severe knee stiffness and pain in her calves that make sleeping, walking, and getting up/down extremely difficult. She has a history of chemical/heavy metal poisoning. EAV testing revealed a plugged lymph system in her general spleen/lymphatic system, especially in the leg areas. (There was minimal energy—12/12, indicating a complete reduction of energy within 10 seconds.) An Erchronia laser was used to open her lymph system. When the Energy Wraps were placed near her knees, she immediately demonstrated increased mobility and range of motion in her legs. After 1 week of wearing the Energy Wraps, she reported improved mobility and less knee/leg pains. EAV testing of the client without the Energy Wraps was 34/1 in the peripheral (legs) and 34/1 in the groin area. This reading represents energy levels at 60% of normal with no loss of energy. EAV testing with the Energy Wraps were 50/1 in the leg area and 54/1 in the groin. She will continue to wear these day and night.

J.M. is a 63y/o married woman who has had an operation including a plate and pins on her right elbow. She also reports occasional sharp leg and knee pains that bother her throughout the day and awaken her at night. EAV testing revealed moderate energy loss in her right elbow and knees with significant fall; readings were 32-34/12. J.M. wore the energy wraps around her knees and elbow periodically for 1 week. She then reported a week later that she was no longer wearing the Energy Wraps because the pain in her elbows, knees and legs were no longer occurring. This woman wishes to purchase one Energy Wrap in case of recurrent pain.

Sincerely,
