Re: EnerGPolariT

I have had the opportunity to test several of the subtle energy devices manufactured by EnerGPolariT on several occasions. The equipment that I use, the PHAZX system, is designed to measure subtle energy changes in the body using Galvanic Skin Responses and Total Body Responses with multi-phasic measuring methods. Upon all occasions, I have found that these products from EnerGpolariT provide ample benefit regarding subtle changes within the meridian system of the body, especially with marked improvement on the Governing Vessel, Triple Warmer, and in a protocol to measure spin or polarity of the body.

Each of the products did vary in time and effect that it had on individuals, however, they all showed positive results, and demonstrated positive effect on those individuals that we tested.

Part of the test also was to determine the correcting effects of the devices with regard to radiation. We did find that these devices do make a positive correction to those who have chronic exposure to EMF and radiation.

Please call me if you have further questions.

Sincerely,
